

2018 Teen Video Challenge

The Collaborative Summer Library Program (CSLP) and the Delaware Division of Libraries (DDL) invite teens to participate in the 2018 Teen Video Challenge. Teens can create a 30 to 90 second video with their unique interpretation of the 2018 slogan Libraries Rock! This is an opportunity for teens to display their creativity and have their ideas heard before a national audience.

The 2018 Teen Video Challenge is a national video competition for teens to get involved with reading and their public library's summer reading program. CSLP is a consortium consisting of public libraries and state library agencies throughout the United States, several islands and territories. The members of this consortium work together to provide high quality summer reading materials for public libraries to use in their summer programs birth through senior citizens.

One video will be selected as the Delaware winner and receive a $100 cash prize and $50 in prizes for their local public library. In addition, all state winning videos will be official 2018 CSLP PSAs and viewed nationally.

For more information and complete contest rules visit <https://guides.lib.de.us/2018teen>